Dear Readers,

It makes us very happy for the inaugural of our first official journal The International Journal of Therapeutics (IJTHERA) to promote open access research publications from all the branches of science: basic or, clinical sciences including health and life sciences. This international journal would be published quarterly in both print and online versions. It would be without any publication charges for online journal and nominal charges for the print issue. Accepted articles will be published online immediately and would be compiled in the next issue as print issue and digital ebook, as well.

Therapeutics is a very broad term and all the other branches of science are related to therapeutics. Research from all branches of medical sciences, hospitals, pharmaceutical sciences, life sciences, nursing, dentistry, physiotherapy, speech therapy, occupational therapy, biomedical engineering, microbiology, biotechnology, biochemistry and many other branches of sciences are integral part of therapeutics as their ultimate goal is the discovery or research which will be for the betterment of patients.

The main aim of science is new discoveries to help mankind and humanity. All the branches of science works directly or, indirectly to research and make new discoveries for the betterment of humanity starting from a molecule discovery, clinical trials, drug research, or, any other patient care related research.

A research work when published provides insights to the readers about the research work done by any researcher from graduate students to post-doctoral fellows. The published work helps other researchers know about similar or, new discoveries in their area of expertise and helps promote more research activities with better evidences from published materials.

IJTHERA has more than 60 editorial board members who are dedicated to science in their own areas of expertise. The journal aims to publish Research Articles, Meta-Analysis, Review Articles, Short Communications, and interesting Case Reports. It is an age of computers and digitization. Our international journal will provide a global portal for researchers to publish their research for the global audience online in digital form without any publication charges. Open access helps to get more visibility for the research & more citations as the research work gets recognized by the global audience.

Farooqia College of Pharmacy, Mysore has initiated this international journal as a small step and gesture for science in collaboration with different global leaders from various Universities, Hospitals, Industries, Research Laboratories, Medical Colleges, Pharmacy Colleges, Nursing Colleges, Life Sciences Colleges and many more organizations as advisory & editorial board members and many more guest members as reviewers for high-quality peer-reviews for quality publication.

We would like to appreciate the hard work and support of everyone who came forward in initiating this international journal. A small step leads to big changes and great discoveries & achievements.

We would be thankful for any valuable suggestions for this new journal and would appreciate it. This will enable us to improve the journal and make it reach to the international audience to all the health & life sciences researchers globally in every country with much improved quality with time.

Thank you all the international advisory members, editorial board members and reviewers.

With Best Wishes,

Editor-in-Chief
